

Emergency prevention in winter

An event devoted to preventing emergencies in the winter was organized for students of the Faculty of Agricultural Mechanization. The dean of the faculty B. Norov, opened the event and noted that it is necessary to prevent gas poisoning of students living in hostels, rented housing. Head of the Department of Life Safety A. Khodzhiev said that according to statistics, most of the emergency situations in the country over the past three years in the autumn-winter heating season are associated with cases of carbon monoxide poisoning. Therefore, let's strictly follow the instructions to prevent this.
