

Conducted a second conversation at the round table on writing articles

✘ On June 11, 2019, with the participation of the Head of the Department of Higher Mathematics, Professor Khudoyorov Bakhtiyor Alimovich, a second round-table discussion on the writing of scientific articles in Scopus journals was held. Unlike the first, for this meeting invited faculty members of the departments of mechanization of agriculture and energy supply of agriculture and water management.

Based on his experience, before submitting articles to journals, Bakhtiyor Khudoyorov advised to find suitable journals corresponding to the fields of activity of each scientist, and then, based on the requirements of journals, gave recommendations on how to eliminate the shortcomings. During the presentation, the participants of the event were shown ways to eliminate the shortcomings indicated by the reviewers. The round table was different from the first variety of questions and answers. The next round-table discussion will be held for faculty members of the faculties of land management and the organization and management of water management.
