

Talk with bank staff

Today, as in all spheres of the country, the banking system is also doing a great deal of work. The banks, their services to the people are very important in improving the lives of our people, meeting the everyday needs of theirs.

On February 21, 2019 in the Faculty of Organization and Management of Water Resources a round-table talk was held with the participation of the faculty's students, accounting staff, senior officials and a Deputy manager of Tashkent city branch of Asaka Bank . At the meeting, the bank employees gave examples of the ASAKA bank's concept of improving the service of the population, expanding the range of mobile banking services, types of deposits, lending to individuals. They responded to the preferential education and consumer lending, transformation, and many other questions that students and staff are interested in. Based on the rising questions and interest, the staff of the Bank dwelled on the fact that the students are well aware of the changes in the banking system in the fast developing era.

Bank officials and the Administration of the Institute have agreed to conduct meetings with students and staff at our institute on a regular basis.
