

Digital service to Farmers

On February 10, 2019 in the Tashkent Institute of Irrigation and Engineers of Agricultural Mechanization held an event with the international project 'AgroMart' to increase the knowledge and capacity of fourth-year students of the faculty of Organization and Management of water resources. A manager of 'AgroMart' International Project Umidjon Pulatov participated in the event.

During the event, the graduates were delivered a lecture on "Providing digital services to farmers in the field of innovative development in agriculture", exchanged views on topical issues and held a roundtable.

The students were provided with detailed information about the opportunities offered by the 'AgroMart' project and their digital services, which contributed to the creation of new knowledge and skills. The students were able to get detailed answers to their questions and to give their suggestions for innovative development in agriculture.

Report by an assistant professor of the department of Irrigation and Melioration B.Matyakubov

R.Jumaniyozov, the press secretary of the institute