

The museum is a mirror of the past

Museums are a bridge between spirituality and the past. Museums are a cultural and educational establishment whose mission is to collect historical and cultural monuments, collect and preserve samples of natural resources, put them on display and present them to the public.

The activities of museums provide a great deal of knowledge about the achievements of the people in the course of historical development and the rich cultural and spiritual legacy left by them. Museums as cultural and educational institutions are one of the leading means of meeting the social needs of the masses. On February 21, students of the 102 group of the HIM faculty visited the State Museum of Temurids and the State Museum of History of Uzbekistan to provide meaningful leisure for students and familiarize themselves with our historical heritage.

The information from D. Uralov, assistant of “Humanities” chair of HIM faculty