

The strategic policy of the existing strategy

It is essential to mention at TIIAME there was hosted a presentation of the book, written by the head of our state "The Strategy of New Uzbekistan". The event was chaired by the first vice-rector of the institute Bakhodir Mirzaev Suyunovich. The guests were introduced to the essence of the event. It was attended by a group of distinguished guests and officials of the Liberal Democratic Party of Uzbekistan, Chamber of the Oliy Majlis of the Republic of Uzbekistan, Chairman of the Committee Zokhidov Erkin Agzamovich, Deputy Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Political Council and Liberal Democratic Party of Uzbekistan Shumarov Dilshod Shavkatovich, Chairman of the Liberal Democratic Party of Uzbekistan, Tashkent City Council Fozilov Ravshan Abdulkhaevich and Professor Omazamov Bakhtiyor expressed their opinions about the actuality of the book, about the creation process and ideological content.

In particular, Doctor of Political Sciences, Professor Bakhtiyor Omonov, as the keynote speaker, presented the facts from the point of view that the book includes all answers to the possible and important questions of today. As one of the speakers, it can be said without exaggeration that the book is a particular guide to life leading to the development of the country at present. Because the book provides guidance and advice in so far, as it is a solution to planned goals for today and for the future. With scientific thoroughness and wise depth, it reflects the dream and the phenomenon of a new Uzbekistan, the factors of its renewal and development. The second part of the book is called "People's State" and argues that the principle of "State for a person" is a criterion for democratic reforms, effective means of public service, responsibility for solving territorial issues, lawmaking and law enforcement practice, independent and fair judiciary, free, open civil society and socially responsible media. The following sections of the book are also included, including "Development of the National Economy", "Fair Social Policy", "Spiritual Development", "Security and Foreign Policy", "Uzbekistan and Global Issues" are brilliantly expressed in scholars points of view. You can also read from the book what the new Uzbekistan should be like in the near and medium term. You will receive clear and complete answers to questions such as how it should be expressed, the principles of development that will guide our activities in the coming decades, the tasks of which are of the highest priority and quite urgent. It is also a question of getting clear answers about what goals and objectives of the idea for creating the foundation of the Third Renaissance represents. The book quotes the idea of the ancient Greek philosopher Socrates: "A person, who wants to change others must first change himself. It requires a clear goal, unwavering will and constant research. "

Therefore, in the family, society and the state, there are goals that are considered as dreams in the family. Let's say we raise children, house them, educate them and bring them to adulthood. Of course, these are human dreams. If we consider this fact as a society, as a country, this is not just a dream, it manifests itself as a national idea, ideology or strategy. After reading the book, it is easy to understand that there are some peculiarities here as well. Because the book contains comments about the new Uzbekistan, about young generation, the creator of our future, which lays the foundation for a renewed Uzbekistan and at the same time awakens, that is the Third Renaissance. All this should serve the practical program for us. The new Uzbekistan requires courage with a new worldview, a new life and a new struggle. There are other considerations about reading the book, for example, why our ancestors, who glorified the first and second Renaissance throughout the world and spread the first sciences in the field of science, culture and art were able to do this. It is impossible not to feel that this spirit, the ideological content of the book is becoming a red thread. The idea that subsequent generations of people, who fully realized the First and Second Renaissance, could also lay the foundation for the Third Renaissance that was embodied, encouraged, and firmly convinced. The book reflects the previous speeches of the head of our state, for example, in his speeches at 72-75 sessions at the UN General Assembly, as well as his calls for peace and cooperation throughout the world. Some of the comments, made in previous calls were also reflected. In particular, the hadiths "All actions depend on intention" collected by Imam Bukhari and the comments of Alisher Navoi and Abdurauf Fitrat gave the work a special strength and spirit. So, there is an approach that society is the initiator of reforms, because this work contains the same spirit, courage, spiritual courage of the head of our state, who began his career with the intention of gaining the consent of the people. In particular, we read the same thoughts in the book: "To raise the level of knowledge not only of young people, but also members of our society, first of all, knowledge and high culture is a very important necessity. "Where there is no knowledge, definitely, there will be delusion " is also confirmed by the teachings of our great thinkers. "The greatest wealth is intelligence and knowledge, the greatest heritage is a good upbringing, the greatest poverty is ignorance." So, there are ideas that if we look at reality through science, it will be easier for us to find solutions to problems. Our noble motto is: "Let's live freely and safely in the new Uzbekistan." It is impossible not to know that unity and harmony are absolutely necessary for this. In the same way, the new Uzbekistan is a social space, where respect for the elderly, respect for young people, sincere support and assistance to people and families in need, kindness become the rule of our life. At the same time, they recognize that the new Uzbekistan is a transformed society, a renewed society recognized by the world, a free country is facing the world. The time has come to popularize and promote the book "Strategy of New Uzbekistan" in all education systems.
