

The future of students is in their own hands

A creative meeting has been held with the participation of A.Salohiddinov, the Vice-Rector for International Cooperation and talented first-year students of all faculties of the institute. During the meeting, the sides exchanged views on the conditions necessary for each student to become a leading specialist and leader in their field and ways to achieve it. It was explained that the specialist in all respects, should know a foreign language, as well. The heads of USchool and Oasis FES training centers participated in this meeting. 3 students won a free one-month course at USchool training center in a lottery organized by Farkhod Shukurov, head of the training center. Gifted students received detailed information on international projects, grants, and questions on English language learning.
