

Preparations for international accreditation of the institute's educational programs.

An online meeting was held with Irina Efimova, Chief Specialist of the German International Education Accreditation Agency ASIIN. Heads of departments and Deans of all faculties of the institute attended at the meeting. The meeting was followed by a brief presentation on the ASIIN International Education Accreditation Agency, a detailed presentation on the conditions for international accreditation of undergraduate and graduate specialties. There was also provided information on the inclusive education system. The participants received answers to the questions full.

For information: The Accreditation Agency for Study Programmes in Engineering, Informatics, Natural Sciences and Mathematics (ASIIN) is a non-profit association established in July 1999. Since, ASIIN has provided expert assistance to German and foreign universities in implementing program and institutional accreditation procedures. ASIIN is recognized as a leader in the accreditation of educational programs in engineering, natural sciences, mathematics, computer science, as well as medicine and economics.

Press service of TIAME