

Training seminar on the new SPACECOM program of the ERASMUS +.

On March 29-31, at the Tashkent University of Information Technologies named after Muhammad Al-Khorezmi, in cooperation with the new curriculum in "Satellite systems and communication engineering" direction and with NICOPA "New and innovative courses for precision agriculture", was held a training seminar on the topic "Course on the design of small satellite systems".

The teaching staff of the Department of Geodesy and Geoinformatics of the Faculty of Land Management attended at the seminar. The training seminar provided information on new generations of space systems and stages of development of modern satellite systems.

Press service of TIAME