

Our nightmare is a sign of honor

In the spirituality room of the student's hostel there was an event devoted to the Constitution Day on the theme "Constitution - the cornerstone of our happiness". The Constitution determines the image and prestige of the state. The Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan adopted on 8 December 1992 at the extraordinary XII session of the Oliy Majlis of the Republic of Uzbekistan. The Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan has developed using the experience of civilized developed countries, but it has also served as a protection of the level of consciousness and culture of the people living on this land. It reflects the main ideas and aspects of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan consists of 6 sections and they consist of 26 chapters and 128 articles. The Constitution is the only basic law that guarantees human rights and freedoms.

The Constitution consists of the basic principles, the fundamental rights, freedoms and duties of individuals and citizens, the administrative and territorial state, the formation of the state power, the society and the individual, and the articles, which can be change. The main reason why the constitution is the cornerstone of our happiness is that it is the basic guarantee that we, the citizens, have rights and freedoms, their responsibilities, the future of our motherland, and the future of Uzbekistan.
